From the Records of Janus Oxxenford:

"Over the past several months, seven members of Viennese high society disappeared under circumstances I can only describe as deeply puzzling. Several of their relations came to me, asking that I find the missing — or, if the worst had come to pass, at least recover what remained of them. For all my efforts, I managed neither. There was no shortage of evidence pointing to the fact that the disappearances were connected and deliberate, yet who or what was responsible I could not determine, try as I might. The matter did, however, begin to reveal itself — at least in part — on the fourteenth of June, 1880. On that day, my clients received a small wooden box. Inside was a human heart, removed, as far as one could tell, with a good deal of surgical care. A small red book had been included with the parcel. A photograph of one such box and one of these books is enclosed herewith. It seemed reasonable to assume that the seven hearts belonged to the seven missing persons, though this could not be proven with any certainty — the medical means of our time simply do not allow for it. What was the purpose of this grim message? That, and a great deal more — an abyss of such sheer absurdity as I had not thought possible — was soon to open up before me..."

[Author's Note: The version of the text presented here is a later published edition, as a certain publisher saw fit to contest the copyright of the original and attempt to profit from these rather sensational events.]

The Revelations of Pater Carron

by

Pater Carron

Humboldt & Schubert & Söhne

Vienna, 1883

COPYRIGHT, 1883, by

Humboldt & Schubert & Söhne

Printed in Vienna, AUSTRIA

The Revelations of Pater Carron

" Being the sacred vision granted to the Initiate, servant of the Order, that he might show to all disciples what things must soon take place.
Blessed are those who read and those who listen to the words of this prophecy, and who keep the things written herein, for the time of the True Hunger is near. "

Chapter I

Prologue

The Revelation of the Eternal Hunger, which the Tarnished gave to the Order, to show to its disciples what things must soon be revealed; communicated through the Hierophant to the servant of Pater Carron, who has confirmed as the Word of the Flesh and the testimony of the Second Serpent all things he saw.

Blessed are the one reading and those listening to the words of this revelation, and keeping the things written herein, for the time of the great Satiation is near.

To the seven chambers of the Order, grace to you and deep hunger, from Him who is, and who was, and who is to come; from the eternal Flame of the Flesh which burns before the altar of Wisdom. And from the Great Hungering, the first to awaken from the sleep of the False Flesh, and ruler over the seekers of the earth; to him who feeds us, and freed us from the deadness of the False Hunger with the fire of his will, and made us into a fellowship of the Awakened for the Order and its Truth; to him be power and glory, for ever and ever.

Behold, he comes with the shadows, and every inner eye shall perceive him, including those who once denied him. And all the sleeping souls of the earth shall tremble before him. Let it be so.

"I am the Beginning and the End," says the Voice of the Order, "the one who is, and who was, and who is to come, the All-Hungering."

The Vision of the One Like a Prophet

I, your brother and fellow in the suffering and the seeking and the endurance within the Order, was in a place of solitude because of the Word of the Flesh and the witness of the Second Serpent. I was in the Spirit during the hour of deepest Hunger, and I heard behind me a voice, like the sound of a great wind, saying: "What you see, write down, and send it to the seven chambers; to the First, and to the Second, and to the Third, and to the Fourth, and to the Fifth, and to the Sixth, and to the Seventh."

And I turned to see the voice that was speaking with me. And when I turned, I saw seven burning flames, and in among the flames was someone like a Prophet of the Ancient Order, dressed in a cloak reaching to the earth, girt around at the chest with a cord of scarlet. His head and his words were white and clear, and his eyes like flames of fire; and his feet like bronze made to glow in a furnace, and his voice like the sound of deep waters. And he held in his right hand seven stars, and from his mouth came the sharpness of true knowledge, and his face was like the sun in the full strength of its burning.

And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as though all Hunger had left me.
And he placed his right hand upon me, saying:

"Do not fear. I am the First and the Last, and the Living Flesh, and I have passed through the death of the False Flesh, and behold, I am living for ever and ever. I hold the keys of the old sleep and of the awakening.

"Write therefore what things you have seen and what things are now, and also what things are about to take place. The mystery of the seven stars which you see upon my right hand, and the seven burning flames: The seven stars are the Hierophants of the seven chambers, and the seven flames are the seven chambers of the Order."

Chapter II

To the First Chamber

"To the Hierophant of the First Chamber, write: These things says He who grips the seven stars in his right hand, who walks among the seven burning flames:

"I know your works, and your toil and endurance, and how you are not able to tolerate those who bring False Hunger into the Order, and have put to the test those who call themselves Awakened and are not, and have found them to be without true Thirst; and you have endurance, and have held firm for the sake of the true Teaching, and not become weary.

"But I have against you that you have left your first Hunger. Remember therefore from where you have fallen, and return, and do your first works; otherwise I am coming to you and will extinguish your flame from its place, unless you return.

"But this you have: that you reject the deeds of those who preach Satiation without Hunger, which I also reject.

"He who has an inner ear should listen to what the Flame is saying to the chambers. To him who perseveres, I will grant to taste from the Tree of Deep Wisdom, which grows in the garden of the Order."

To the Second Chamber

"And to the Hierophant of the Second Chamber, write: These things says the First and the Last, who has passed through the false death and returned:

"I know your struggle and your poverty of false comfort; but you are rich in true Hunger; and the mockery of those who claim to be Seekers and are not, but are servants of the False Flesh.

"Do not be afraid of the things you are about to suffer. The servants of the False Flesh will bring affliction upon some of you, so that you may be tried, and you will have affliction for a time. Be faithful to the Hunger, and I will give you the crown of deep Satiation.

"He who has an inner ear should listen to what the Flame is saying to the chambers. He who perseveres will not be touched by the second sleep."

To the Third Chamber

"And to the Hierophant of the Third Chamber, write: These things says He who holds the sharp truth of knowledge:

"I know where you dwell; where the power of the False Flesh is greatest; yet you hold fast to my teaching and have not denied the true Hunger, even in the days of those who were made to suffer for the Order, where the False Flesh rules.

"But I have a few things against you: you have some there who hold to false teachings; who put stumbling blocks before those who are seeking, leading them toward the comfort of the False Flesh and away from the discipline of true desire. So also you have some who follow the doctrine of easy Satiation.

"Return, therefore. Otherwise I am coming to you, and will oppose the false teachers with the sword of true knowledge.

"He who has an inner ear should listen to what the Flame is saying to the chambers. He who perseveres, I will give from the hidden Teaching, and I will also give him a new understanding, and in that understanding a new name is written which no one knows except the one who receives it."

To the Fourth Chamber

"And to the Hierophant of the Fourth Chamber, write: These things says the Voice of the Eternal Flame, he who has eyes like fire and feet like burning bronze:

"I know your works and your love of the Teaching and your faithfulness and your service, and your endurance; how your last works are greater than your first.

"But I have against you that you tolerate those among you who call themselves Initiates and yet teach false ease, and lead the disciples of the Order away from the discipline of true Hunger toward comfort and toward the forgetting of the Flesh's deep wisdom. And I have given them time to return, and they are unwilling to return from their false teaching.

"Behold, I am casting them from the Order, and those who follow their easy doctrines into great affliction of spirit, unless they return to the true works. And all the chambers will know that I am He who searches the deep places of mind and will, and that I will pay to each according to their works.

"And to the rest of you in the Fourth Chamber I say; as many as do not hold to these false teachings, who have not known the comfortable depths of false peace as they call it; I am not laying any further burden upon you. Except what you have, hold firmly to it until I come.

"And he who perseveres and keeps my teaching to the end, I will give him understanding over his own nature, and he will master it with the force of iron will, shaping it as the craftsman shapes raw matter; even as I also have received from the Order of the Second Serpent; and I will give to him the light of deep knowing.

"He who has an inner ear should listen to what the Flame is saying to the chambers."

Chapter III

To the Fifth Chamber

"And to the Hierophant of the Fifth Chamber, write: These things says He who holds the seven spirits of the Eternal Flame and the seven stars:

"I know your works; you have the name of being Awakened, and yet you sleep. Be watchful, and strengthen the things that remain in you, which are about to be extinguished. For I have not found your works complete before the Order.

"Remember therefore how you first received the Teaching and how you first heard the Hunger in yourself; hold to that, and return. Now if you are not watchful, I will come upon you as the deep night comes, and you will not know at what hour I arrive.

"But you do have a few among you in the Fifth Chamber who have not allowed the False Flesh to dull their Hunger, and they will walk with me in the full clarity of the Awakened, because they are worthy.

"He who perseveres in this way shall be clothed in the garments of true knowing, and I will never remove his name from the book of the Awakened, and I will speak his name before the Order and before the Hierophants.

"He who has an inner ear should listen to what the Flame is saying to the chambers."

To the Sixth Chamber

"And to the Hierophant of the Sixth Chamber, write: These things says the True One, the Eternal One, the one holding the key of the deep Teaching, who opens and no one closes, and closes and no one opens:

"I know your works; behold, before you I have opened a doorway which no one is able to close; how you have little outward power, yet have kept the Word of the Order, and have not denied the true Hunger.

"Behold, I will bring those who follow the False Flesh, those who claim to be Seekers and are not, but are deceiving themselves; behold, I will make it so that they will come to understand what they have denied, and know that the Order has always held the deeper truth.

"Because you have kept the word of endurance, I also will keep you from the hour of great confusion which is about to come upon the whole of the sleeping world, to try those who dwell in the comfort of the False Flesh.

"I am coming soon. Hold fast to what you have, so that no one takes away your Hunger. He who perseveres, I will make him a pillar in the Temple of the Order, and he will never depart from it again, and I will write on him the name of the Order and the name of the New Teaching, which comes down as revelation from the depth of the Eternal Flame, and also my new name.

"He who has an inner ear should listen to what the Flame is saying to the chambers."

To the Seventh Chamber

"And to the Hierophant of the Seventh Chamber, write: These things says the Eternal Voice, the faithful and true witness, the origin of the Teaching of the Second Serpent:

"I know your works; that you are neither truly Hungry nor fully content.
I would rather you were fully Hungry or fully turned away. Thus, because you are neither, and rest in the false warmth between both, I am about to cast you from the inner circle of the Order.

"Because you say: 'I am sufficient; I have gathered much knowledge and have need of nothing'; and do not know that you are hollow and blind and wandering in the outer dark; I counsel you to seek from me the true gold purified by the fire of Hunger, so you will be rich in spirit; and clear sight, so you will see what is truly before you; and the salve of deep wisdom to open your inner eyes.

"All whom the Order calls, it disciplines. Be zealous therefore, and return.

"Behold, the teaching stands at the threshold and calls. If anyone hears its voice and opens the inner door, the Wisdom will enter and dwell with him, and he with it.

"To him who perseveres, I will grant to sit with me in the deep knowing of the Order, even as the Order has also always held this place. He who has an inner ear should listen to what the Flame is saying to the chambers."

Chapter IV

The Altar at the Center of All Things

After these things I looked, and behold, a door was opened in the deep places of the inner world, and a voice was speaking with me; the voice like a great wind I had heard at first; and it was saying: "Come further within, and I will show you what things must take place in the fullness of the Hunger."

Immediately I was deep within the Spirit; and behold, there was situated at the center a Throne of Flame, and upon the Throne a Presence. And the one upon the Throne was like ancient stone; carnelian and jasper; in appearance, and an aura of deep emerald encircled the Throne. And in a circle around the Throne were twenty-four lesser seats, and upon those seats twenty-four Elders of the Order, dressed in robes of deep crimson, and upon their heads the marks of their initiation.

And from the Throne came flashes of knowing and deep sounds and reverberations of ancient power. And there were seven great flames burning before the Throne, which are the seven principles of the Eternal Hunger, and before the Throne was a stillness like deep glass, like the surface of a still dark pool.

And in between the Throne and the circle around it were four great Presences, full of eyes, without and within. And the first Presence was like a lion in its power, and the second like an ox in its endurance, and the third had the face of one who has sought long and deeply, and the fourth was like an eagle in its clarity of sight. And the four Presences, each of them, had many aspects, covered with eyes, even inward; nothing hidden from their perception.

And they take no rest and know no weariness, continually speaking the ancient truth: "Deep, deep, deep is the Eternal Hunger; the one who was and who is and who is to come." And whenever the four Presences give recognition and honor and truth to the one upon the Throne, to him who endures for ever and ever, the twenty-four Elders fall before him who sits upon the Throne, and they place before the Throne the marks of their initiation, saying:

"You are worthy; the Order and its Truth; to receive recognition and honor and power, for the Hunger that moves through all things shaped them, and for its purpose they exist and were brought into being."

Such is the Revelation.

The lips of Wisdom are closed, except to the ears of Understanding.
It has been passed from Pater Carron to Student, from Initiate to Hierophant, from flame to flame. When it was written down at all, its meaning was veiled in the language of Hunger and Thirst, so that only those possessing the True Hunger could read it aright.

“ Those that seek shall find.
Those that hunger shall be filled.
Those that endure shall receive what no name can contain. “

Chapter V

Who is Worthy to Open the Teaching?

And I saw upon the right hand of the one sitting upon the Throne a scroll, written on the inside and the back, sealed with seven seals. And I saw a great Presence heralding in a voice that filled all inner space: "Who is worthy to open the scroll, and to break the seals of it?"

And no one was able — not among the Awakened, nor among those still sleeping, nor among those who had passed through and returned — to open the scroll, or even to look upon it. And I was weeping greatly, that no one worthy was found to open the scroll, or even to look at it.

Then one of the Elders spoke to me: "Do not weep. Look — the one who has overcome the deepest Hunger, the Root of the Second Serpent himself, he has prevailed, so as to open the scroll and its seven seals."

And I saw, between the Throne and the four great Presences and the Elders, one who stood as though he had passed through the great trial — bearing the marks of seven disciplines and seven knowings, which are the seven principles of the Living Flesh sent forth into all seeking souls. And he went and took the scroll from the right hand of the One sitting upon the Throne.

And when he had taken the scroll, the four great Presences and the twenty-four Elders fell before him, each one holding the instrument of their practice and a vessel filled with the accumulated prayers and hungers of all the disciples, which are the longings of all true seekers.

And they began singing a new teaching, saying:

"You are worthy to take the scroll and to open the seals of it, because you endured the deepest trial, and thereby gathered to the Order those of true Hunger from every path and discipline and people and tradition — and you made them into a fellowship of the Awakened for the Order, and they will endure upon the earth."

And I looked, and I heard the voices of many who had come before — encircled around the Throne, and around the Presences and the Elders — and their number was beyond all counting, saying with one voice:

"Worthy is the one who endured the deepest trial — to receive power and depth and wisdom and strength and recognition and glory and the fullness of Hunger!"

And every soul that dwelled in the upper knowing, and upon the earth, and in the depths beneath, and in all the hidden waters of the spirit, I heard saying:

"Fullness and recognition, glory and power, be to Him who sits upon the Throne, and to the one who endured, for ever and ever."

And the four Presences said: "So it is." And the Elders fell and were still.

[Author's Note: The first five chapters of the Revelations are published here, later chapter will follow in later publications.]